Hi all,

I'm not sure whether this will help the investigation, but I felt like you had to know.

A couple of months ago I met someone of the ministry of environmental affairs at a conference. After the evening programme we grabbed a drink together and this person shared some interesting facts. (S)he had heard that the petrochemical industry used influencers to gain power with the government.

It wasn't clear how this was done, but my interest was triggered. I spoke to this person again last week. This time things were said about the money flow, (s)he told me that a lot of money was being invested, by foreign investors, in the Roile Harbour.

(S)he didn't know about any deals between the government and these investors, but (S)he felt like there should be some kind of deal.

Best,

John Dove
